1. These guidance notes are to assist you in applying for the Mental Capacity (Welfare) Accreditation. The application form includes basic instructions to help you complete the form correctly. Additional guidance notes are provided here.
2. The scheme covers all types of health and welfare work within mental capacity law. You can choose from one of two accredited statuses:
  - a. Accredited legal representative: recognition for expertise in mental capacity law with ALR status. In accordance with rule 6, and accredited legal representative can be appointed by the court under the rule 3A to represent P
  - b. Accredited practitioner: recognition for expertise in mental capacity law without ALR status. Cannot be appointed by the court to represent P as an ALR under rule 3A.
3. Accreditation is for three years, after which accredited practitioners will need to apply for re-accreditation.
4. Emboldened words (apart from document headings and advisory notes) are defined in the glossary of terms.
5. The application form is designed to be completed electronically in Microsoft Word (1997 and later). Please answer all relevant questions and use the 'tab' key to progress through the form. ## About the accreditation

The scheme is designed for practitioners who specialise in health, welfare and deprivation of liberty matters, although applicants will be expected to demonstrate a working knowledge of all aspects of mental capacity law.

The scheme has been approved by the President of the Court of Protection in accordance with Rule 3A and 6 of the Court of Protection Rules 2007, as amended by the Court of Protection (Amendment) Rules 2015. As such, the scheme is recognised as the only accreditation providing accredited legal representatives in accordance with rule 3A.

The accreditation is open to practitioners who wish to be identified as an accredited legal representative (ALR) and authorised by the Court of Protection to represent P before the Court in accordance with the Rules. Alternatively, the accreditation also recognises practitioners who would like their specialist experience and knowledge in mental capacity law recognised but not wish to be an ALR. These members will be referred to as accredited practitioners.

The Law Society will provide the Court of Protection with a list of accredited legal representatives (ALR's), from which they may appoint a rule 3A accredited legal representative in appropriate proceedings. The accredited status will also be promoted online on the Find a Solicitor profile for practitioners accredited under either option.

Eligibility to apply

Only solicitors, barristers and chartered legal executives may apply for accreditation.

Whilst there is no minimum requirement for time spent in practice in this area of law before applying, applicants to the scheme must ensure they have sufficient experience to clearly demonstrate the accreditation competences.

Achieving accreditation is based on three elements:

1. Completing the approved pre-requisite training course provided by City University. For further details on the training course please see www.lawsociety.org.uk/mental-capacity/. To book the training course please visit City University's website. Applications for accreditation will not be considered until the pre-requisite training course has been completed. Please note that applications must be submitted within six months of attendance on the approved course and a copy of the course certificate must be enclosed with the application.
2. Demonstrating through the assessment that you have the requisite knowledge, skills and competences.
3. Meeting the fitness and propriety standards by passing vetting checks carried out by the accreditation office as well as providing an Enhanced Disclosure and Barring Service (EDBS) check results or certificate. (see section 1, part C - suitability for accreditation).

Once the standards and fitness and propriety checks are satisfied, the accreditation office will grant membership to the scheme.

Expected standards of competence

The Mental Capacity (Welfare) Accreditation is committed to robustly assessing applicants' competence against defined knowledge and experience in mental capacity law, ensuring quality representation for some the most vulnerable people in society.

There is no minimum entry requirement for time spent practising in this area. You will be asked to demonstrate your experience working in this field over three years prior to application. Those with fewer years' experience can still apply provided that you can evidence your ability to meet the required competences. Each competence is mapped against the SRA's Statement of Solicitor Competence to assist members with planning and reflecting on their learning and development within the SRA's framework.

C - Suitability for scheme membership

Applications for membership of the scheme may be accepted from solicitors, barristers and chartered legal executives, subject to approval by the Law Society.

Applicants will be expected to meet a set of minimum requirements before their application can proceed for assessment. We will refuse applications on initial assessment, if applicants are unable to demonstrate that they meet the minimum requirements.

We also carry out checks to ascertain whether an applicant is a fit and proper person to be accredited by the scheme. Further details can be found below and in the general application criteria and guidance on the website.

Disclosure and Barring Service (DBS)

Please note we cannot process applications unless we receive your Enhanced Disclosure and Barring Service (EDBS) check results or certificate. Whilst we can accept a previously issued enhanced disclosure, it must be no more than three months old at the date the accreditation office receives your application.

All applicants are required to apply for an enhanced disclosure check from the DBS, whether pursuing an initial or re-accreditation application. Our preferred provider is Atlantic Data, who can be contacted via the following link: <https://accreditation.disclosures.co.uk/LawSociety/>

If you choose Atlantic Data, you will not need to provide a copy. You can however, use any other provider of your choice, but must ensure that we are provided with a copy of the DBS check certificate in support of your application, which is certified by the same manager who has countersigned your application. The statement will need to read:

'I have seen the original document and I certify that this is a complete and accurate copy of the original'. The certifier then needs to sign and date the document and include their position.

As DBS checks can take up to six weeks, we strongly encourage you to start the process as soon as possible, as failure to provide the DBS certificate within 21 days of submitting your application to the scheme may result in your application being refused.

If a disclosure check reveals information that raises doubt about your suitability to be a member of the scheme, your application may be rejected by the accreditation office after initial assessment. For further details, regarding our initial eligibility checks, please refer to the individual accreditations General Application Criteria and Guidance on the website.

You must also provide supporting documentation to confirm the reason for this period of leave (e.g. a maternity certificate (MAT B1) or a doctor's fit note). If you have been unable to complete the required hours for any other reason, please explain why in 'Other'. Reasons for non-completion will be considered by the accreditation office in order to determine whether your application can proceed.

Please note that should you fail to provide a complete training record and you are unable to provide a valid reason, your application may be returned to you.

Declaration

The applicant and a supervising partner or manager must each complete a declaration to confirm that:

- The applicant understands how the information provided by them will be used by the Law Society

About the assessment process

What happens to the completed application form

When an application form is received, we will send an acknowledgment email. We will then check the application to confirm that you are eligible to apply for accreditation – for example, that you have attended the approved pre-requisite training course and undertaken the required amount of PD hours.

If at this stage you appear not to be eligible, we will contact you and ask for further information in support of your application. If you are eligible, we will follow the processes set out below for initial accreditation.

Initial accreditation process

We will send you an email with a proposed time and date for interview.

The interview - both application routes

All interviews take place at our office on chancery Lane, London. The interview will be conducted by two of the scheme's assessors.

It is essential that applicants arrive one hour before the scheduled time of the interview.

On arrival, applicants will be given a case study to read, which will be based upon a mental capacity law scenario. Applicants will have an hour to read and consider the case study and prepare for the interview.

The task, on the basis of the information provided in the case study, is to consider the relevant and applicable statute, principles, case law and practice and procedure, with a view to advising and representing the client.

Applicants will have to consider how best to prepare and present their client's case, what further information, documents or reports they may request and how to deal with the issues of law, procedure and evidence which arise in the case study. These matters will be tested by questions asked during the interview.

Applicants may make use of books and other reference materials when preparing the case study and may take these, and any notes, into the interview. Please note that applicants are not permitted to speak to anyone about the case study before the interview and will be required to return all documents provided to them at interview before they leave.

The total time allowed for the interview is one hour.

Additional interview requirements – accredited legal representative status only

In addition to the above, there is a further element for applicants applying for the accredited legal representative status.

Applicants will be shown a series of short clips of an accredited legal representative interviewing a client. The applicant will be asked a series of questions in which they will have to consider the information they have seen and discuss with the scheme's assessors whether the scenario they have viewed is conducive of good practice.

This will be included in the interview which will should not exceed one hour in total.

How decisions will be made

The assessors conducting the interview will consider and mark the answers provided and make a recommendation on the basis of the score achieved, as to whether the accreditation should be awarded or refused. Applicants will be informed of the Law Society's decision on their application by email within two weeks of the interview.

In making their recommendations, assessors may exercise their discretion in those instances where an applicant has narrowly missed achieving accreditation.

If the assessors consider that there were any special factors which may have affected the applicant adversely during the interview they may record their views in writing and what they say will be taken into consideration, should the applicant wish to appeal the decision.

Term of accreditation

Membership is for an initial term of three years, after which time an accredited member will be required to demonstrate their continued suitability to remain on the scheme by successfully completing a process of re-accreditation.

Re-accreditation

Re-accreditation occurs every three years. A reminder will be sent to members three months prior to the due date.

Under the re-accreditation process you will be asked to demonstrate your continued competence by:

- Providing relevant information on the application form
- Providing a portfolio of case work
- Providing details of the PD undertaken in each year
- Having a satisfactory professional record and satisfactory EDBS check.

We will also carry out checks against internal records and other sources as appropriate.

Accredited members must continue to familiarise themselves with changes in law, practice and procedure, by completing at least six hours of mental capacity law related PD hours per year throughout their period of membership and recording this on a learning and development record.

Re-accreditation will usually be via the submission of an application form and portfolio. However, if the chief assessor or an assessor considers it necessary, you may additionally be invited to attend an interview at our office on Chancery Lane, London.

Appeals

Applicants can appeal to the accreditation office against a refusal or revocation of accreditation

Appeals will be determined by the scheme's chief assessor on the basis of the application form, the interview documentation and any written representations made by the appellant. Please refer to our general application criteria and guidance for further information on our appeals process.
